Make a Splash With Some 35 Ton Visitors

For the first time, Clipper Vacations brings to you Gray Whale Watching from downtown Seattle with a stop at historic Coupeville on Whidbey Island. Gray Whales are magnificent marine mammals reaching up to 50 feet in length and 35 tons. Every year they migrate north from Baja Mexico to Alaska with their calves in tow.

Gray Whales are known as coastal cruisers who stay close to the shore feeding in shallow water. They are baleen whales (whales lacking teeth), and feed on small crustaceans found in the mud. On your Gray Whale and Sea Life Search you will have an opportunity to spot these creatures as they move north on their long journey, stopping to feed along the way. One way to spot them is to look for a tall blow near the shore. Knowledgeable on board naturalists give you the best chance for a peek at these special creatures as well as the many other marine life and birds living in the Puget Sound area.

Make a Stop on Scenic Whidbey Island

Also included in your Gray Whale and Sea Life Search is a stop in the quaint and historic Coupeville on Washington's Whidbey Island. You will have an hour and a half to visit the seaport town. Stop into one of its many excellent restaurants for lunch or swing by its locally famous ice cream parlor for a sweet treat. Other features of Coupeville not to be missed are a saloon and the historic red wharf building containing the skeletons of a gray whale, a porpoise and a sea lion.
